ABSTRACT

This document is a subject index to the microform (microfilm, microfiche, superfiche, COM, micro-opaques) collections of the Pattee Library of Pennsylvania State University. Collections are listed under both general and specific subject headings and are identified by main entry, title, and microform call number. (JD)

Introduction:

The following subject index is of the microforms collection located in the Microforms Section of Pattee Library. It does not cover the large microforms collection located in the Documents Section or collections in the branch or Commonwealth Campus Libraries. All microformats are represented in the collection (microfilm, microfiche, superfiche, COM, micro-opaques), and the materials in their original format include books, pamphlets, periodicals, newspapers, documents, oral histories, doctoral dissertations, masters theses, and manuscript collections. The subject index is limited to collections; individual books, dissertations, theses, periodicals, and newspapers are adequately covered in the card catalog.

The subject index was developed to meet two needs. First, in spite of an impressive record of cataloging over the years, the library still has an estimated quarter of a million uncataloged titles in microformat. In some cases, large collections, such as the two Early English Books collections, are represented by one set of catalog cards to cover over 20,000 titles. Second, the card catalog in the Microforms Section does not have subject entries. This is not a major problem for the fully analyzed collections such as the American Culture Series, because patrons come to the Microforms Section with the microforms call number. However, while it is possible to determine by using the Microforms card catalog that the library has a particular collection, the Terence Vincent Powderly Papers for example, it is not possible to tell which collections contain materials on the Knights of Labor, or even more generally, which collections relate to labor unions.

The index originated out of an attempt to solve the above problems by creating a subject index on 3 by 5 cards based on subject headings used in the main card catalog. A decision was made to expand that file and to place the information in the computer so that it could be easily updated and copies made for other library locations. Each collection was looked at and assigned additional subject headings to describe it. Collections are listed under general as well as specific subject headings. As a result, all of the various American labor union collections, for example, are listed together under the heading "Trade Unions--United States." In addition, the papers of public officials are listed under the name of the office if an important part of the papers are concerned with the period of office.

The biggest challenge was the large unanalyzed "imprint" collections, such as the Early American Imprint series, which contain books on almost every subject. Since so many microform collections contain historical material, it was decided to list most collections under the name of the country with the sub-heading history. This provides chronological access to the collection as well as subject access. As a result, it is possible to locate all of the microforms collections concerned with the period of the American Revolution, for example, by looking in the index under "United States--History--Revolution, 1775-1783."

The information given in this subject guide is very brief (usually only main entry, title, and microform call number). For additional information about a collection ask at the Microforms Service Desk (E5 Pattee Library). Collections with Micro 4 call numbers are microfiche collections, while those with Micro 3 call numbers can be either microfiche, microcard, or superfiche. Reel guides and indexes can usually be located by looking in the Microforms Section's card catalog under the entry given in this guide for the collection. The larger book collections are described in Suzanne Dodson's Microform Research Collections: A Guide (Microforms Collection Z1033 .M5 D65).

The index was produced at the Computation Center using the Script Program. It would not have been possible without the assistance of Chester M. Smith, Jr. of the Computation Center staff. It is hoped that future updates of the index will be possible as additional collections are added to the library.
